$5,000,000 Lost on Horse Races.

It is stated that a man won and lost $5,000,000 on horse races. For twenty years he kept at it, and most of the time he was successful. At last fortune turned against him, and today he is penniless. Gambling is a good deal like neglect of health.- It can be kept up a long time, but in the end it is disastrous. Fortunes are harder to restore than health. The first step toward winning back lost health is to restore the digestive organs to a normal condition. For this purpose Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is far ahead of anything else. This remedy is a specific for indigestion, dyspepsia, fever, ague, nervousness, and sleeplessness. It is a wonderful tonic, Druggists sell it everywhere.

Two Pointed Questions Answered.

What is the use of making a better article than your competitor if you can not get a better price for it?

Ans .- As there is no difference in the price the public will buy only the better, so that while our profits may be smaller on a single sale they will be much greater in the aggregate.

How can you get the public to know your make is the best?

If both articles are brought prominently before the public both are certain to be tried and the public will very quickly pass judgment on them and use only the better one.

HE FOUND THE MAN.

In my early days I was a reporter on The Clarion Call. Only a dislike to own myself beaten and the occasional fascination which compensated for the more frequent discomfort kept me in the office. But all this was before the day I was sent to interview the wife and daughter of the man who had just disturbed society by disappearing from it, Mr. Grey, so it had been learned from the notices concerning his disappearance, had one evening after dinner gone out for a stroll around the block. He had never come back. His family was of course prostrated after the manner of families on such sad occasions. After giving him time to come back, sending to his clubs, his office and the houses of his friends his wife had finally told his lawyers, and systematic search was begun. The family had retired from public life and denied themselves to every one, consequently my chances for an interview with Mrs. Grey did not see hopeful, but the city editor's air of granting me the opportunity admit my fears.

I took the train for the Greys' -they lived a little way out of town-and pre-pared myself to meet the servants' scorn and the other attendant evils of such an assignment. The coach was an ordinary one, and there were several laboring men in it, evidently traveling to some suburb where they were to work upon the roads, for they carried pickaxes and shovels. There sat opposite me and slightly forward a peculiar type of man to whom I found my gaze wandering every few minntes. His iron gray hair was thick and very unevenly cut. His face was covered with a stubbly growth of gray beard. He looked unwashed, unkempt and generally unpleasant. His blue overalls were stained with red clay and his red flaunel shirt opened at the front in a way that revealed anything but a beautiful neck, burned and blistered. But the man's twitching lips and convulsive movements of the jaws attracted my attention, and his deep set, steely blue eyes that burned in cavernous sockets fascinated me. He did not talk to the other men, but sat with his head sunk upon his breast, only occasionally raising it to east a look about him. He, with the other laborers, left the train at Forestville, where the Greys lived, and I soon saw them, under the direction of a foreman, assigned to make various road repairs.

Of course Mrs. Grey would not see me I sat in the library while the servant took my card to her, for there were other callers in the drawing room. Over the mantel hung a picture, presumably Mrs. Grey, done in oil. She was as beautiful as a cameo and as hard. Opposite her was the portrait of a clean shaven man, with fine iron gray hair brushed off his forehead—a more plebeian cast of countenance, but strong and interesting. The face seemed familiar. I stared at it until the servant

"Mrs. Grey is sorry, miss, but she can see no one, and has nothing to say for publication."

"Very well," said I. Then I rose to go. "Is that Mr. Grey?" I asked, nodding

"Yes, miss," was the reply, and suddenly it flashed upon me where I had seen those deep set, curiously shaped, keen blue eyes. My heart leaped almost into my mouth. I took one long look at the portrait and left the house.

The men were repairing the road, and I noticed one of the workmen whose face startled me. The resemblance to the portrait I had seen of Mr. Grey was remarka-ble. He worked with a flerce delight in the severe labor. His face seemed more mad than ever, with the exultation of motion and strength deepening the gleam in his eyes.

There was a telegraph office at the end Pa's Experience.

Say, pa, queried Willie the other terring while preparing his geography conce," was my command. Then while I morning while preparing his geography lesson, how many motions has the earth? I don't know, Willie, replied the fond would receive if I had made a mistake Every minute I became mo e and more convinced that I had made the most colo sal blunder on record. By the time Mr. Ellington Ellsworth, the only man who happened to be available when my telegram was received, had arrived I was nearly hysterical. I told Mr. Ellsworth my theory, and he was properly skeptical. He discouraged me thoroughly in a two minutes, but I suddenly rallied.

"I want you to keep that man in sight. I shall go to town and get his lawyer. Find

Mr. Ellsworth didn't wish to act upon that suggestion, but he finally consented to do so. I went in, summoned Mr. Grey's lawyer and with him met the workingmen's train. Mr. Ellsworth, looking bored and unhappy, got out and pointed out our suspected "disappearance" to his lawyer. My heart stood in my mouth. Was I to be forever disgraced or made famous forever?

"Mr. Grey," said the lawyer, stepping forward, "what does this mean?"

And when I saw the man start wildly I And when I saw the man accept knew that I was not forever disgraced.

"Well," said the city editor jovially, "what did they say?"
"They didn't say anything. They didn't see me."

"So you didn't get the interview?" said the city editor shortly.
"No," I replied meekly, "but I found

And now, such is the trony of fate, the city editor, instead of letting me rest on my laurels, is always exhorting me to live up to the reputation I made in the Grey case, when I found the missing man, learned how overwork had worn out his brain and how in his half crazed condition he wandered away and returned to his original occupation in life, to the hor-ror of his wife with the cameolike face. OLD GOWNS.

Ways of Modifying and Adapting Them to Present Styles. Mousseline de soie and gauze, which are imployed so extensively, are a great aid in remodeling gowns, as they may be used to veil worn or slightly defaced places, Moreover, a silk gown of last year's style may be brought up to date by adding a deep flounce of mousseline de soie to the plain skirt and draping the sleeves and bodice with the same material of the color of the dress or black, since black accompanies everything. able resource, for they contain an immense amount of goods which, from the nature of things, has not been exposed to much wear. There is almost enough material in a pair of the old balloon sleeves for an entire bodice. The present sleeves are very tight and small and may be of a dif-ferent fabric from the body of the costume, although matching the trimming in color bands of blue satin with a curved effect. The blouse bodice has a tiny basque composed of tabs and is adorned by lengthwise satin bands alternating with applications of blue velvet. The yoke of white satin and the white satin points of the bertha are also decorated with blue velvet applications. The sleeves have bias bands of satin. The belt of white grosgrain is enriched by cabochons, and the blue satin collar has a gold buckle. The hat of gray felt is trimmed with gray satin and gray plumes, with a buckle.

THE TYPE OF FASHION.

The type of fashion continues to be the close bodice and the skirt molded to the Of course there are many modifications of the type, as always, and more vari ations of bodice than of skirt are seen.

The plain, close fitting corsage is rather the exception than the rule in actual practice, as it is becoming only to well developed figures. But even the theoretical abandonment of fluffy and distended garments seems hardly to be realized, so short a time has elapsed since bouffancy was the acme of desirability.

The strict follower of fashion must now, in order to be perfectly correct, wear a clinging gown, without wrinkles and with the closing so deftly concealed that the means by which the costume is entered is a mystery. Princess gowns are at a premium, and pointed—that is, not belted-bodices are also in great favor. The secret rests really in having a perfectly fitted and boned lining, upon which the outside is stretched and draped with the utmost patience and ingenuity.

The costume sketched is of four shades of gray cloth. The lightest forms the skirt, upon which are superimposed three redingotes of graduated size and color. The lightest shade of cloth also composes The lightest shade of cloth also composes the bodice and sleeves, three graduated applications completing the effect. The bodice terminates at the waist line, where are two silver buttons, the bodice being finished by small coattails at the back. The closing is invisible under the edge of the first application.

HAD FUN WITH UTT.

BUT THE VICTIM FAILED TO APPRE-CIATE THE JOKE.

And When It Dawned Upon Him That the Boys Had Been Giving Him a Dose of His Own Medicine He Was More Than Weary.

Secretary Utt of the Commercial club will always believe that Vine Hovey and Edgar Allen played it low down on him. Mr. Utt enjoys a joke as well as anybody-when he plays it-but when it comes to trifling with his tender feelings and impugning his mental equipoise he is averse to being it in such

A few days ago Edgar Allen of the firm of Allen Bros, went down to Forest City, Mo., to look after his canning factory and tomato farms. John Utt went along because Utt is another old resident of the Platte purchase and delights in meeting his old papaw friends. The train arrived in Forest City at noon, and Mr. Allen and Mr. Utt repaired to the hotel for dinner. After dinner Mr. Allen engaged a rig to drive around his tomato farms and invited Mr. Utt to go with him.

"Nit!" exclaimed Utt. "I'm not in the tomato business." "Come along anyhow," entreated

"No; I'm going over to Oregon, where everybody knows me and where I know everybody," said Utt. Just then Vine Hovey came along and asked:

"Going to look at Ed's tomatoes?" "No; going to Oregon," said Utt. Hovey then said he would drive around with Allen, and Utt said he would wait for the Oregon back. Aller and Hovey drove around to the hack barn, and Hovey said to Bert Foster: "There's a heavy, smooth faced, dark complexioned man standing down or the corner by the hotel. He escaped from the asylum at Glenwood last night, and we are trying to hold him here till No. 21 comes. Some asylun officers will be on that train. The man says he wants to go to Oregon, but don't "Well, no man that's a bughouse can ride in my hack," said Foster. When Foster drove down by the hotel. Utt hailed him.

"I ain't goin to Oregon," said Foster as he whipped up his horses and sent them galloping around the corner. Utt made a few remarks and sent word down to the livery stable that he wanted a team to drive over to Oregon. Just as the liveryman was hitching up

Allen and Hovey drove by. "Say," said Hovey to the liveryman, "if a large, smooth faced, dark complexioned man who says his name is Utt wants a rig to drive to Oregon, don't let him have it. He escaped from the asylum at Clarinda last night, and we're trying to hold him here until the asylum officers come down on No. 21." The liveryman looked disgusted and immediately unhitched the team and sent it back to the stable. Then he went up town and said to Utt:

"Sorry, mister, but I haven't got a team in the barn. All out.' Utt's remarks convinced the livery man that he was dealing with a lunatic. Utt was mad. He shed his coat and started to walk to Oregon. It was hot, up hill and dusty. Utt toiled along, but a telephone message beat him. Hovey phoned Ira Peter that Utt was coming and explained the joke. Peter is quick to catch on, and when Utt hove in sight of Oregon everybody was on. Everybody that Utt met looked at him with pity and refused to recognize him as the Utt of other days. Everybody thought him an escaped lunatic, and Utt was in misery. He could not find a friend to recognize him and could not hire a livery team to drive back to Forest City. Walking was out of the ques-

Finally Ira Peter hove in sight and pretended to recognize Utt. Ira insisted that Utt was all right and that he would take care of him until the asylum

About an hour later Utt looked at Ira in a woebegone fashion and said:
"Ira, old boy, if you don't let up in a few minutes, danged if I won't have to be taken to an asylum."

And then Peter relented, and Utt was received royally by his old friends and neighbors.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE SMOOTHEST TRAIN IN THE UNITED STATES.

On Sunday, November 20, the Burington Route made a radical change in the schedule of the Chicago Special, its Heretofore, this train has left Denver in the morning-immediately after the strival of D. & R. G. and Colorado Midland trains from the west. It now leaves at 1:40 p. m., arriving at Omaha at Chicago at 8:15 p. m. the same day In other words, it runs 1,046 miles in 291/2 hours-an average rate of speed of about 36 miles an hour. There are not half a dozen long-distance trains in the United States which are scheduled faster than 36 miles an hour. And there is not one-not a single one-which has as good a record as the Chicago Special for being "on time all the time.

The equipment of the Chicago Special consists of one sleeping car, one dining car, one library and two chair cars. The cars are of the newest design, and have been in service less than six months. All of them have the new wide vestibule, and are lighted with Pintsch gas. The sleeper is upholstered in peacockblue, and contains twelve sections and a drawing-room. The toilet rooms are unusually roomy-a circumstance to which much of the train's popularity is ears are seats for 56 persons, ladies' and gentlemen's toilet-rooms (with soap, marble wash-basins, comb, brush, lowels, and an abundance of water both hot and cold), and a smoking-room upholstered in leather.

Of the eleven dining-cars operated by the Burlington Route, none is finer than that on the Chicago Special. It is as bright as a new pin. The linen is spot lessly clean, the service is prompt, and on every table is a gorgeous bouquet of American Beauty roses, one of which he waiter affixes to your coat when you have finished your meal. Best of all the a-la-carte plan prevails-you only pay for what you order.

The library car is the men's favorite retreat. It is a veritable club-house on wheels, a place where comfort reigns supreme, and where the necessity for exerting one's self is reduced to a minmum. If you want anything-today's paper, the monthly magazines, a eigar, a bottle of apollinaris, or a pillowpress a button and the smiling attendant brings it to you.

The Denver Republican calls the Chicago Special the "smoothest train in the United States." The phrase describes it to a nicety. It IS a smooth train-inside and out. Its furnishings are in admirable taste, and the track over which it glides is perfection itself. Fortunate is the traveler who goes east on it. Kings fare no better when they travel, than he.
